THE 1951 SANGITA

Presented By

The Class of 1951

Suffield High School

Suffield, Connecticut

This is our story; the way we lived . . . places we loved . . . people we knew . . .

These are our parents . . . This is Suffield . . . for they have made us as we are today.

This is the Class of 1951.

This is . . .

Congregational Clock Tower . . . as seen from the Common, its golden face proclaiming, "There is always time for God."

"Breathes there a man with soul so dead, who never to himself had said, 'This is my own, my native land'?"

... Suffield, Connecticut, U. S. A.

This is our town—Suffield is our heritage. Heat waves shimmering over fields of green tobacco; red and yellow leaves burning in every lane; snow lending an ermine cape to our majestic mountain; delicate green buds showering tree lined streets after Spring's first kiss—these things we will remember, for they are part of us.

Suffield is a quiet town. On either side of Main Street white colonial houses are set back on rolling lawns, while in the outlying districts the predominant dwelling is the big old-fashioned farm house. Our churches are characterized by the simple charm of their Early American design.

But Suffield is young and modern in its thinking, for the ideals and concepts on which it was founded are as alive today as they were in 1680. And we are Suffield's children—the ideals are ours to uphold!

"Knowledge is power" . . . and this is where we quench our thirst . . . The Kent Memorial Library on the green.

"Excelsior!" . . . graceful lines of the Baptist Church, its gilded dome crowned by heaven—an epitome of lofty ideals, towering hopes.

"A teacher who can arouse a feeling for one single good action accomplishes more than he who fills our memory with rows and rows of objects classified with name and number"; in Suffield the faculty is comprised of teachers who stress development of character rather than devouring textbooks verbatim.

Starting with a cultured compatible staff, who, as well as being professionally competent are interested in students and in the community, the four main objectives of Suffield High are met.

To bring about self-realization by each student, fostering good health and worthwhile recreational and leisure interests is essential, in addition to giving the pupil a functioning knowledge of speaking, reading, writing and figuring.

Secondly, the instructor endeavors to promote a sense of social consciousness in the student by exemplifying and approving of respect, courtesy, co-operation, and self-control in the classroom as well as tolerance, democratic attitudes, friendships, and appreciation of the home and family.

Personal buying, choices, skills, and occupational information is available to aid the student.

Within four years, most of us will be qualified to vote, and our faculty helps us to understand controversial subjects by teaching us critical judgment. That we may have a true sense of our civic responsibility, we are taught the fundamental details of social justice, community participation, law observance and world citizenship.

The guidance department offers information, advice, consultation, and a final decision of our own. Teacher observation reports and the Boston University testing service form a solid cornerstone on which to build our plans. The guidance program has its culmination each year in Career Day, when professional authorities speak and answer questions concerning their vocations.

This staff, however, within a few years, must be augmented to meet the needs of our growing community. The estimated increase in enrollment will be forty per cent five years from now. This, of course, will necessitate an expanded plant; it will mean more money from the taxpayers to cover this increase in Suffield's educational plan.

But no matter how our alma mater grows, we can hope that our brothers and sisters—and yes, maybe our children—will have the advantage of as fine a staff as we have had.

... the way to live

Mary M. McGuire, R.N.
Saint Francis School of Nursing
School Nurse

The modern miracles of dynamic thought come home to intrigue and shape pliable young minds to the ways of analysis and reason. (The Frosh meet Mr. Morse and electricity).

School days . . .

"They all want something," especially when reference reports are due. The haystack needle CAN be found.

"That is the axle!" The Driving Class learns how to ride, not walk, home.

"Readin' 'n 'ritin' 'n 'rithmetic," and a lot more besides; from shop to typing, from chem to cooking, there is a course to prepare us for after school life without resort to the "hickory stick."

In the spring of our eighth grade year, we selected courses after consultations with our parents and faculty. Those who planned a business career selected the commercial curriculum and set out for their classes armed to the teeth with typing erasers and stenographer's notebooks. For those whose goals were undetermined or who planned to labor immediately, a general course of study developed a broad background and some training. College hopefuls enrolled in the college preparatory course and embarked on a rough sea of language, history, math and science.

Since July, Korea has posed a personal problem in democracy. (Donnelly, Kraiza, Nodwell, Egan).

... School daze

"A Bond is a promise to pay—" and this class, they hope, will pay after graduation.

"I will NOT lower my standards; you'd better raise yours!"
(Hieroglyphics and Miss Klim).

"All work and no play" . . . makes school boring and students dull. Here the appeal to all senses as well as reason overcomes the ennui that breeds inertia. Audio-visual instruction (radio, movies, slides, records), science laboratories, student discussions, special readings, and individual projects take learning from the rote of text into the realm of activities enjoyed.

But PEOPLE still provide the best source of experience for learning, and from the faculty comes individual consideration and wealth of fact. Add thereto trips and assembly programs (professional and student), and our emphasis on PEOPLE is evident.

Yet with all, problems arise and help is needed. Room 25 supplies ideas but decisions must be ours.

"Let this Globe be the center of your universe right now!" Trust the English Department to immortalize the immortal Bard for each generation. (Miss Biggerstaff).

"You can't eat culture, lass; let's talk dollars!" From clouds to earth in the counseling room, as tests, grades, pamphlets, and logic picture YOU. (Mr. Greenleaf).

"Lights out" as science increases visual perception and illustration of a social problem. Our temperamental projector is increasingly evident in class . . . some gum, no popcorn.

The social side of the student is developed through Suffield's many clubs. In these recreational groups, students strive toward a common goal, practicing co-operation, tolerance, and democratic attitudes. These extra-curricular activities may lead to a life career, but the respect and courtesy practiced, and the friendships made here will remain with us.

For many, this is the relaxed side of school, where fun and friendship, parties and people provide activity and a certain maturing.

CLUBS

Honor, Honoris, f.

Being a school, it is fitting that SHS should recognize its leaders in achievement, character, service, and student activities. The National Honor Society, Sigma Chapter, is open to students who maintain a "B" average during the first three years of high school, and also show a controlled mature nature in leadership, character, and service throughout. Selection is made on the basis of record and the recommendations of the faculty. Of our group, only Pat Noble was selected when a Junior.

The Student Council is designed to be the sounding board and intermediary between the students and the administration. Composed of class presidents, club leaders, and home room representatives, the group is free to criticise, suggest, plan, and act in the solution of problems confronting the school and pupils. But its strength is derived from the calibre of the representatives selected by the students and therefore is only as effective as they are responsible.

For services rendered and honors achieved, the National Honor Society key is affixed. (Noble, Larson, Mr. Sisson, Root, Parmalee, Ineson, Dunai).

We, the People, Speak . . .

"Now this is our ideal" (Donnelly, Edmonds, Mr. Mac.).

On Parents' Night the Student Council, through a public meeting, attempted to explain its organization, responsibilities, and functions. On this occasion it made available to other groups the opportunity to explain their purposes and value to the students. (Here, Secretary Hill reads the minutes of a previous meeting).

Leaders

The Leaders' Club is comprised of athletically minded girls who have been elected by their own gym classes. In addition to determining the girls sports awards, they arrange the schedule for the intermural basketball competition. At the after-school contests, members from classes other than those playing act as referees and scorekeepers. The aims are to develop initiative, skill, responsibility and sportsmanship as well as to promote class spirit.

The Senior Patrol members were appointed to posts after the joint recommendations of Mr. Sisson and a committee from the senior class. Charged with establishing the example for underclassmen, they are responsible for setting and maintaining order, not only between periods and in the cafeteria, but also during fire and air raid drills.

"LISTEN now, my children—" as Mrs. Ganley emphasizes the word, the ONLY word, to Fourchette, Hill, S. Noble, Gallant, Whalen, Richey, Marciniak, McCarthy, P. Noble, Nodwell.

"Brass Buttons, Blue Coat—"

Time to go, oh, happy time! (Donnelly, Griffin, Jones, LaBerge).

"Having been selected by a committee of your friends and neighbors—" (front: Root, Whalen, McCarthy, Bielonko, Galetta, Noble, Fetko; rear: Ridel, Kraiza, Ineson, Donlon, Brown, Jones, Griffin, Donnelly, Osowiecki, Falkowski, Radziewski.

"Salve, sum mater familias." Dedicated to the study and "feel" of Roman customs, time and effort is expended in drama, painting, poetry. (Edmonds, Sullivan, Noble, Gallant).

"At our previous meeting . . ." Convening twice monthly, the group discusses administration, then turns to a project, game, study of ancient Rome, and . . . refreshments.

Finis Coronat Opus

"Arma virumque cano . . ." "I cry for arms and a man . . ." not a very good translation but perhaps the reason for so many girls in this most active group with a most active (and popular) leader, Mrs. Morse.

Cherchez la Connaissance

Le cercle achieves extente cordiale with La Belle France through films, records, books, and art to provide the opportunity to use the romance language conversationally.

An elaborate French meal, from soupe l'onione to champagne (grape juice, vintage 1951), closes the year's program.

"Bon jour, Ma'm'selle, c'est Paris parle . . . c'est Avril en Paris . . ." the language of international diplomacy, Breton fishers and Norman peasants, luxury in Riviera sunshine, the "left bank" and Notre Dame, Cognac, the champagne country, and Kennett, Parmalee, Larson, Spulik, Reed, Pomeroy, Kuras, L. Ineson, Grabowski, Bogdanski, Prior, Piejko, Sikes, Donnelly, Conley, J. Ineson.

"To you who from failing hands we throw the torch—" as McComb inducts Parmalee to the presidency. Also: Gallant, Fuller, Nodwell, Hill, Marciniak, Noble.

Massed behind the symbol of "enlightened living and leadership": Parmalee; Fuller, Gallant; McComb, Larson, Root, Whalen; Marciniak, Nodwell, Mrs. Ganley, Hill, Noble.

"To Create, Maintain, Extend—"

Established at Suffield in 1946 during post-war "activity" enthusiasm, the Hi-Y (Boys) has proved most durable and enthusiastic in offerings founded on high standards of Christian living. Its sister "fraternity," Tri-Hi-Y, was organized in 1949 to provide similar ideals of clean speech, sportsmanship, scholarship attained under YMCA guidance, through conventions, mock legislatures, ceremonies, and enlightened living.

"My dear brethren, we are gathered together . . ." as prexy Grif reports to the people of a meeting here, a conclave there, everywhere a Tri-Y . . . L-R: Donnelly, Brown, Ineson, Griffin, Benson, Mr. Thawley, Spaulding, Tobin, Laberge, Falkowski, Donlon, Ridel, Jones, Pomeroy, Barnett, Edmonds, Rapacki, Osowiecki, Sullivan, Zukowski, Dalrymple.

"Curtain! Curtain!" And this curtain rang down on a play that never was. The Juniors couldn't find a MAN, a leading man (not one volunteer for all that pulchritude).

However, a later success will approve their efforts. (Kennett, Parks, Towne, Osborne, Prior, Spulick, Waterman, Reed, Piejko).

Phantasia

Three is definitely a crowd when THIS is in order but the Juniors seem to have dealt the "stand-in" a nice hand. (Prior, Spulick).

We'll bet that is a slick deck they're using and someone will get a fast shuffle in this rehearsal scene. (Towne, Kennett, Parks, Osborne, Waterman).

No "Comedy of Errors" this! Miss Biggerstaff's Senior Club met diligently for five months to prepare for one hour of tinsel glory in the hushed stillness of the auditorium. Variety Night is an institution at Suffield, where interest in the Thespian art runs high.

The proceeds go to the Senior Class Washington Trip, and the Junior Dramatic Club donate their talents for the cause. Directed by Mrs. Fay, their other production is presented for the student body in assembly.

Miss Kelly's group, a new organization composed of junior high schoolers, proved their worth with a well-received comedy.

The modern version of "what is this I see before me—" or "Honest, I didn't know I was loaded." . . . tomorrow: East Lynn. (Pomeroy, Galetta, Brown, Crane).

Adding the light touch . . . or how to gather lip rouge the hard way. (Larson, Pomeroy, Alfano).

Surprise! Could it be . . . not again, not another . . . THING. Oh, just a birthday. (Ineson, Pomeroy, Galetta, Crane, Austin, Alfano, Larson, Brown).

"My lips could move and talk" . . . and sing! Front: Richey, P. Fetko, Nitch, Tallis, Morris, Howard, Gallant, Jones, V. Jackson, Edmonds, Van Allen, Chagnon, M. Fetko, Noble, S. Parks, Spulick; second row: Cruse, D'Amato, Egan, Norrie, Carney, Smiegel, Golon, Colson, Kokofsky, Burel, Whalen, Hoyt, Hayes, Kwolak, Hopkins, Bogdanski, Grabowski, Biggerstaff; third row: Malcolm, Rutkiewicz,

Music, Music, Music

Under the professional leadership of Mrs. Jolidan and Mrs. Convey, the musical activities have as their goals the cultivation of an appreciation of good music and a love of singing, as well as ability in execution. Chief among these activities are the two glee clubs which divide their weekly meetings into three: vocal exercising, harmonizing, and singing pop favorites.

"Still are thy pleasant voices . . . awake—" as reviewing this year of music past, the concert solos call to mind Jones, Giblin, Howard, Edmonds.

Music appreciation courses as well as choral singing are included in the seventh and eighth grade curricula to pave the way for future achievements in the glee club and orchestra.

Instrumental music is furnished during the year by the student orchestra for other schools and at community functions, as well as for assemblies. Mrs. Jolidan, who instructs some of the members, co-ordinates their endeavors into a unified musical effort.

The climax of the year's Terpsichorean labors is the annual concert held in April. The Girls' Glee Club, in gowned splendor, joins the Boys' and the Orchestra for an evening of blended harmony. The thrilling strains of young voices singing rises up to greet the welcome Spring.

Mrs. Marjorie Jolidan . . . patience personified, and an indefatigable leader.

"Viva la Companie" as the male chorus manfully exercises the chords in preparation for the yearly concert. Later, joint rehearsals make festive the "happy seventh" (no 'law) and the "after" hours. Front row: T. Edmonds, Biggerstaff, Falkowski, Lewandowski, J. Sheridan, Griffin,

Write Makes Might

The Columbia Scholastic Press Association Awards Board has recognized the merits of student literary efforts as expressed and published in the SHS Readers' Reflection, and yearly increasing circulation indicates student enthusiasm and interest. Homeroom reporters augment the writing staff in gathering and presenting the news and stories. Seized upon by an ever-rushed publications group (clerical), the Reflection is caught up from the clattering mimeo and exchanged quickly by "Circulation" into coin.

The Advisor—Editor team reviews its handiwork: Miss Biggerstaff and Pat Noble re-examine and criticize.

SUCCESS! More compliments than criticism . . . even circulation is up.

"... and this is how we do it." A Noble effort on Parents' Night to explain its purpose and the staff functions.

"374 . . . 375 . . ." and so to press. (Newport, Salls, Ridel).

Shaft of Light

"Staff! Staff! What Staff???"

Cost: black coffee, midnight oil, pink eye, chewed fingers, sore temper, broken dates, and a lesson in invective.

This, our SAGITTA, was first a hope, a sweet young dream. Then suddenly February was upon us and we were oppressed, repressed, and depressed by that black monster, the DEADLINE! The idealistic conception of a perfect SAGITTA became a grim reality, and haunted by the ever present problems of copy, sizes, money, and senioritis, we spent many a sleepless night and foggy day.

Organized to pay for and to gain this book, Pat Noble seems very calm and patient, explaining the sales campaign (usually, there was a wild haggard look) and Laura Parmalee pictures sweet and serious (rather than rushed and distraught).

Hail to thee, blithe spirit . . . queen of loveliness, empress of gaiety, beflowered cinderella! Root, Alfano, Parmalee, Ridel, Nodwell, Tkacz.

Grandeur Is a Dream

Ah, Imagination! Blue tent cloth, iridescent tinsel, paper silhouettes, a mock pool but real goldfish, and flowers from everyone's gardens were transformed for the evening into an enchanting, fragrant terrace under a starry azure sky. The orchestra poured forth sweet music from a dark and secluded corner as the sssh, sssh of movement created a special accompaniment. All dances at Suffield are "come late, go early" affairs, and plans for the after-party snack were as important as the dance itself. But, tonight, a queen with flowery crown and winged slippers . . . tomorrow, a classroom Cinderella with pressed corsage and dreamy memory.

While basketball is the primary interscholastic sport, equal emphasis is placed upon its derivatives, friendliness, knowledge of other schools, and co-ordinated endeavor, that are true of all our interscholastic sports. However, interscholastics are but one phase of the health program; additional time and emphasis is given to classwork, physical education and intermurs. Extraordinary means are taken to insure that each student is physically fit through physical examinations, dental hygiene, eye tests and the lunch program.

SPORTS

1950: "This year we build character." One sweater, three charms, one letter . . . and Springfield College trainees. Front row: Pira, Patterson, Dalrymple, Waterman, H. Shepard, T. Edmonds, Chase; second row: Rapacki, Barnett, Beneski, Lewandowski, Giblin, R. Edmonds, Hawkins, J. Shepard, Holcomb; standing: Thawley (coach), Donnelly, Donlon, Ridel (manager), Griffin, Jones, Brown (coach).

FUTBOL

Soccer is not the major sport at Suffield High but it does have its own part to play in the health program. It provides, perhaps more than any other sport, rugged outdoor exercise. Soccer, because of the large number on a team, allows many boys to take part both in the scheduled games and in practice scrimmages. This active participation plus the necessary good sportsmanship required in such a rough sport make it the ideal choice of the fall program.

Donlon boots out of danger against Bloomfield in close game.

"It's mine" . . . Hawkins guards successfully but Bloomfield came on later to score and win. Dark weather, dark season, but bright spirits during long, long afternoons.

"Eye on the ball, left arm straight, step forward—" and the ump will decide anyway. High school baseball enjoys a short, usually rainy, season between basketball and graduation; really good prospects are few. This is Mr. Brown's only opportunity to ride the official and make his own noise at a game.

In Spring, a Young Man's Fancy

In the spring a young man's fancy turns to thoughts of outdoor sports—baseball and track at Suffield. Lagging interest and the tobacco season make this the nadir of the sports year, although Suffield has started one boy in the minors. Fundamentals and team spirit are developed with fun and enthusiasm. Track endeavors are restricted to the state relay meet at University of Connecticut, from which have emerged ribbons of recognition each year, despite lack of an organized squad.

An excellent block, the tag, and the runner fails to score. Action at Windsor Locks.

"Take your marks, get set!" for one day of fun and perhaps glory at the Connecticut relays. (Edmonds, Donnelly, Sullivan).

"The windup, the pitch—" the man who either wins or loses—or showers early.

"Fundamental Positions!!"

"Height makes might" in the era of basketballing giants. Here, the "bound" compensates for length. Suffield vs. Canton. (Lewandowski).

"Now, let's understand each other—" at the scorers' table, a quick pre-game look-see at the BOOK and the CLOCK. (Blakesley, Brown, Thawley).

Lacking a quantity of "natural" athletes to produce consistently successful teams, Suffield is handicapped in interscholastic soccer and baseball competition.

Basketball, on the other hand, which requires fewer really good players for a winning squad, has permitted creditable representation in the Central Valley League year after year, and these four years have seen the team qualify three times for the Connecticut "C" tournament. In addition to interscholastics, there are intermurals and junior high school games, popular with boys and girls, not only for their own physical benefit but also for the development of players for the JV and varsity teams. This '50-'51 team is the first "pay-off" of the Saturday morning little league.

Donnelly

Griffin

The camera had a better eye than the official for the foul was not called. Suffield 43; Canton 37. (Lewandowski).

Jones

Girls are never the weaker sex under the basket—but it looks like even the substitutes are in this one. To quote Durante: "Everybody wants to get into the act." — but who's mortified!

"Tweeet!"—before someone gets maimed or killed; then time to repair torn fingernails, mussed coiffure, smeared lipstick, ruffled dignity.

The Weaker (?) Sex

For girls, no less than boys, the gym is a focal point for health, fun, relaxation from classes, and shower room scuttlebutt. Under Mrs. Ganley's rough and ready aegis, it is THE haven for wild-mild, high-low spirits.

The one remaining girls' interscholastic sport, softball usually is anything but soft with the competition for places and the aversion to gloves. Scores run high, voices shrill, and tempers flare.

"Let's go, gang." Ready to take the field, ready to do or die—fresh and enthusiastic now, tired and talkative later. A victory, of course!

Softball offers too short a season for a full interscholastic league schedule, but enough home-and-home games are available to create and maintain a buoyant spirit of aggressive competition. (McCarthy, Hill, Gallant, Richey, Mrs. Ganley, Nodwell, Whalen, Noble, Fetko).

Girls Behind The Boys Behind The Ball

Bielanko, Fetko, Rutkiewicz, Gallant, Noble, Whalen, Hill, Kwolek.

"Victory! Victory! is our cry"; victorious or vanquished, we never stopped rooting, despite gruelling practices. With flying needles and pricked fingers we turned out professional uniforms, just in time for the first rally butterflies, but Mrs. Ganley and Mrs. Seymour were always there to lean on. "Friendly's" eased the aching stomachs after wins, but nothing could help the aching hearts after a loss. Rafters resounding at home; long bus rides away; laryngitis; broken backs; we'd "jump" to do it again.

"We're here tonight to cheer and fight . . . first, a sacrificial offering; then, the victory parade to the tournament.

Which came first, chicken? egg?

"A sound mind in a sound body;" the latter being achieved with the aid of the nurse who gives periodic eye and hearing exams and takes height and weight measurements. The weekly dental clinics and annual physical exams are backed up by biology courses and gymnasium periods; the entire program is rounded out with well-balanced cafeteria lunches.

The straw that broke the camel's back.

Not ballet; but basketball — maybe.

Down in the mouth?

The eyes have IT.

Growing pains, hunger pangs.

A hush ripples and settles over the field of humanity. The air vibrates with tension, and suddenly from nowhere comes the poignant strains of "Pomp and Circumstance." With slow, measured tread we march to the climax of another chapter in our lives.

Graduation! A magic word that conjures memories of a vivid past, and visions of a hazy future. To the Underclassmen we leave our school, and pledge ourselves to prove worthy of their faith in us.

SENIORS

1956-1955

The Junior High School originally was planned to occupy a separate wing, but because of building costs, the 7th and 8th grades are housed in the high school proper, where they occupy four permanent rooms, although their curricula have been broadened to include shop, home economics, art, and music.

"The corn is green," and so is the proverbial frosh, but not for long. Officers Edmonds, Waterman, Matyskiela, and Golon guided them over the rough sea of this first year, with two class parties to liven up the journey. Advisors: Mrs. Faye and Mr. Zak.

1953

This is the traditional year for ring selection, wise cracks, and growing up. Exemplifying the proper code of conduct were officers Sullivan, Egalavage, Chagnon, and Howard. A food sale augmented the treasury, and with their rings (committee, Wood) the sophomores came into their own. Advisors: Mrs. Ganley and Mrs. Convey.

Down the home stretch at last, with officers Hill, Gallant, Bogdanski and Kwolek holding the reins. A school dance and food sale constituted their activity schedule, with the big prom for the Seniors climaxing the year. Advisors: Miss Poirier and Mr. Casinghino.

Class of 1951

This is We . . . the Class of 1951. Our rustling gowns are donned and our mortar boards are held high as we walk into the future we have built. Although we're leaving Suffield High, these memories we will take with us and cherish always.

Inexperienced, not very shy Freshmen, we entered the portals of SHS in 1947, and in our first unified class effort elected officers: Ineson, Laberge, Noble, Kraiza. Representing us on the Student Council were Ineson, Egan. Miracle of miracles—a successful Frosh dance! The Spring-

In the end, as must to all things.

This night is a death and a birth. Our parents and friends and gowned faculty, like the profuse flowers, are here to note the demise of our high school years; but more than that, they have come to mark our newborn maturity.

The paths we seek lie in many different directions; the arrow of destiny is our own to propel. Our years at Suffield High have prepared us for our future, and we leave happily confident that a good end is a good beginning.
